

ALEXANDRIA. VA SATURDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 13.

BENATOR CAMERON SAYS:

"I will vote against the election bill whatever "I will vote against the election bill whatever form it may assume. I am opposed to it in priciolo and in its details. The South is now resuming a quiet condition. Notthern capital has been flowing into the South in great quantities; manufacturing establishments have been created and are now in full operation, and a community of commercial interests is fast obliterating sectional lines and will finally result, in the not far distant fature, in forming one homogeneous mass of penfuture, in forming one homogeneous mass of peo-pie, whether being in the North, South, Fact or West. The election law would district to West. The election law would disturb this de-riable condition and produce ill-feeling between the North and South. I am, therefore, opposed to the bill, and shall assert my independence as a Senstor and cast my vote against the measure."

The Pennsylvania Senator has been in the South, is familiar with reputable, intelligent and thrifty southern men, and has made investments in southern industries. He knows and understands the true condition of affairs in the South, and how essentially n cossary it is for the welf-re of that section, and cons quently of that of the whole country-for it is upon the cotton crop that the financial prosperity of the entire country depends-that the existing friendly relations between the two races thereof should be maintained, and how criminally unwise it would be to sever such relations, as would be the case if the force bill were passed. But President Harrison and Messrs, Frye, Chan. eler, Edmunds, Hoar, Lodge, Spooner, and the other advocates of the bill referred to, know nothing about the South, and don't want to, and the former even thanks God he was not born in this section.

SERATOR DOLPH is another one of the many northern republicans who can see motes in other people's eyes but not beams in their owe. He wants congressional representation from Mississippi reduced because the new constitution of that State imposes a capitation tax and an educational qualification upon suffrage, though Massachasetts and other northern States have been doing so for a century, without any reduction on that account in the number of men they send to Congress. And he is so shocked at the currage upon the poor Mississippi negross, who will not be allowed to vote unles they can read the names on the ballots and have paid their espitation tax, that he failed to remember, until reminded of it yesterday by Savator Vest, that, by the laws of his own State, the poor negro is prohibited, not from voting, for which he cares nothing, but from earning an houset living by the sweat of his face, in labor on the public works of that State-those laws expressly providing that white labor only shall be em ployed on such work. The right to earn one's most and bread by honest labor is much dearer than the privilege of casting a ballot without knowing what names are on it and without paying a capitation tax, but such northern republicans as Senator Dolph den't think so.

"SHALL our daughters have dowrice?" is a question that is discussed at length in the current month's number of the North Amer ican Review. A decided y more important for organization. The old officers were requestion is, Shall, not only our daughters, but our entire families, have bread and meat? Under the present republican policy, all the money of the country is being concentrated is the hands of a few people, leaving little or none in those of all the others, thus making the rich richer and the poor
